

Bhargava tweet triggers rumour mills in political circles

GIRISH SHARMA ■ BHOPAL

Rumour mills in the state capital are in overdrive since a recent tweet by senior BJP legislator embarrassed the state government and forced observers to ask, "Gopal Bhargava ko ghussa kyon aata hai?" Whispers in the state capital suggest that the uncharacteristic tweet by the party veteran, who is also the senior most legislator in the state assembly, is brimming with innuendo, as he has long been sidelined in the party. Sources in the BJP on condition of anonymity confirm that Bhargava's recent outburst ostensibly over a substantial rise in crimes against women in the state is an attempt to return to the political center-stage. On Sunday, Bhargava kicked up a minor political storm when he posted a picture of a young girl with her head on her knees on one side and Ravana on the other. Without getting into specifics, Bhargava simply questioned the moral right of burning Ravana (under these circumstances). While party leaders maintain that the social media post should not be taken out of context, political observers iterate that the post is an understated comment on Chief Minister Mohan Yadav, who also holds the portfolio for Home. "With additional charge of the Home Ministry, the Chief Minister is directly responsible for law and the state," they insist while adding that the tweet has found its mark as Bhargava has sent alarm bells ringing in Bhopal. Bhargava's annoyance is natural, as he has neither been included in the state cabinet nor has he been given any responsibility in the party organization despite being a member of the cabinet on six occasions. This is the highest number of terms held by any minister in the Madhya Pradesh cabinet. He has held the position of cabinet minister continuously since the BJP stormed to power in the state in 2003. Bhargava was named leader of the opposition in the state assembly when the Congress pulled off a surprise victory in 2018. "With such sparkling credentials behind him, it seems unfair on part of the BJP to leave such a senior leader along the sidelines. It is reasonable for Bhargava to get fidgety as the Mohan Yadav government nears the completion of its first year in office," remarks a political observer. Bhargava has won the Rahali seat in nine consecutive elections since 1985. He also holds the state record for his winning streak from the constituency, as no other leader has held a seat for as many terms. The BJP inner circles have been aware of Bhargava's displeasure for a while now, as he and former minister Bhupendra Singh had left a recent investor conclave at Sagar citing urgent work. Like Bhargava, Bhupendra Singh also represents the Sagar district, and the two had been cabinet colleagues till their marginalization at the hands of the party. The district is now represented by Govind Singh Rajput, a loyalist of union minister Jyotiraditya Scindia, who moved to the BJP from arch-rivals Congress. Party insiders agree that both Bhargava and Singh have been unhappy with the state of affairs in the party since the last assembly elections, which coincided with their sidelining. Claims and aspersions aside, the party continues to underplay Bhargava's social media post. BJP State Unit spokesperson Rajneesh Agrawal says that the tweet is a message to society that people need to overcome the Ravana (demon) within, as it is responsible for the rise in crimes against women.

11 mile to Bangrasia included among model roads

STAFF REPORTER ■ BHOPAL

The 6 km road from 11 mile to Bangrasia in the state capital will become a model road in the state, FDR (Full Depth Reclamation) technology will be used in this road in which material of the existing road will be reused. Public works department would start building the road. The condition of the road from 11 mile to Bangrasia has worsened after the rainfall. Since this road connects the religious city of Bhojpur. Therefore, thousands of people are troubled every day. Bhojpur has the world's largest Shivalinga. Bhojpur Mahotsav is also celebrated here every year and visitors experience bad roads due to the potholes on the 6 km long road. The same happens with the devotees as well, but after a few months the scenario would change. With the construction of a road from 11 mile to Bangrasia, people of many districts including Raisen, Vidisha, Betul will also get great relief. PWD Chief Engineer Sanjay Maske said, we are making four lane road from 11 mile from Bhopal to Bangrasia. New FDR technology will be used in this. Whatever material comes out while breaking the road, it will be reused.

This will become a model road in the state. Work will start soon. Around 200 trees will also be cut in 6 kilometers. Most of the trees are eucalyptus. For this, PWD has also deposited Rs 80 with the forest department. Due to lack of permission, the trees could not be cut. Full Depth Reclamation (FDR) is a recycling method. Using this method durable roads can be built with very few resources. By digging up the damaged paved road, new material is prepared by mixing chemicals in the material coming out of it and then it is put on the road which reduces the cost.

Stop promoting specific shops for books, uniforms: DEO

Bhopal: Issuing an advisory, the district education department on Tuesday asked all schools to refrain from the practice of promoting hand-picked business establishments. The orders, issued by District Education Officer (DEO) Narendra Kumar Ahirwar reiterated earlier orders while advising CBSE, ICSE, Secondary and Higher Secondary schools to ensure that parents and guardians are not forced to purchase school books, and uniforms from specific establishments. The DEO move brings substantial relief to parents as the matter has long remained a bone of contention between schools and guardians. While schools say that they only direct parents to specific establishments to ensure availability of the syllabi, parents have repeatedly accused schools of indulging in the 'unfair practice' to earn commissions from these sellers. The DEO has asked for strict adherence to the advisory, failing which disciplinary action may be initiated against the erring institutions. Earlier, many schools used to sell books and uniforms on campus before court directives prohibited such transactions between educational institutions and students.

PM Matru Vandana Yojana, emotionally sensitive step: CM

STAFF REPORTER ■ BHOPAL

Chief Minister Mohan Yadav says that the Pradhan Mantri Matru Vandana Yojana is an emotionally sensitive initiative, which gives rise to a feeling of security and hope in every pregnant woman. With this, she can lay the foundation of a healthy and safe life not only for herself but also for the future of her child. Motherhood is the most special and emotional experience of every woman's life. It is a journey that brings not only physical changes but also deeply affects at the mental and emotional level. Pooja Yadav, a resident of village Bilaikhar, Gram Panchayat Surajpura, Satna district, also supports this. Pooja says that becoming a mother is an important stage in life.

Proper advice and assistance received at this time proves to be very helpful. Pradhan Mantri Matru Vandana Yojana was launched with the aim of taking care of the safety, nutrition and health of pregnant women in India. Pooja says that when she became pregnant for the first time, she learnt about Pradhan Mantri Matru Vandana Yojana through an Anganwadi worker. Pooja received the first installment of three thousand rupees at the time of pregnancy registration. At this time, Pooja purchased nutrient-rich fruits, vegetables and other essential items. Pooja remained healthy throughout her pregnancy and after this she gave birth to a healthy child. After the birth of the child and getting the first vaccination, she received the second installment of Rs 2 thousand. Pooja considers the financial assistance received under PMMVY as a milestone. It is noteworthy that more than 43 lakh women of the state like Pooja have got the benefit of PM Matru Vandana Yojana. Madhya Pradesh has been at the top position at the national level for 5 consecutive years from the inception of the scheme till the year 2022-23. Nutrition is always marginalized during pregnancy due to going on work and not having a good family situation. In such a situation, Pradhan Mantri Matru-Vandana Yojana is being run with the aim of providing cash incentives to pregnant women as partial compensation for the loss of wages and encouraging the birth of a girl child on the second delivery. The scheme is being implemented in all the districts of the state under the National Food Security Act-2013. Since the inception of the scheme, about 43.81 lakh beneficiaries have been registered and Rs 1210 crore has been paid.

Chief Minister to launch Sampada 2.0 on October 10

STAFF REPORTER ■ BHOPAL

Chief Minister Mohan Yadav will launch the Sampada 2.0 software of the Registration and Stamps Department on October 10, 2024, at Kushabhau Thackeray International Convention Center at 1 pm. Finance and Commercial Tax Minister Jagdish Devda said this is an important step for the state government in digitalizing the property registration process. New registry rules have been implemented in the state. The implementation of the pilot project of this advanced software has been completed in Guna, Harda, Dindori, and Ratlam districts. It will be implemented in all 55 districts of the state next Thursday. Sampada 2.0 will enable identification through e-KYC. Its features include GIS mapping of assets, biometric identification, and auto-formatting of documents. In this system, documents will be executed through e-sign and digital signature, which will eliminate the necessity of bringing witnesses. Registration of certain documents will no longer require personal presence at the Sub Registrar's office. Communication with the registration officer will be done through video conferencing, and in many cases, no interaction will be required. Provision for video KYC has also been made for a person's identification.

For registration, the document will be executed through e-sign and digital signature. E-copy of documents will be available through Digi Locker, WhatsApp, and e-mail. There will also be a facility to generate e-Stamp. The property search process has been made simpler. Sampada 2.0 special mobile app has also been launched. This innovation will not only be convenient for the general public but will also help in establishing Madhya Pradesh as a leading state in the direction of e-governance. This initiative will also smoothly conduct the revenue collection of the state through cyber tehsil and digital processes.
